

JACKPINE PADDLE KEELE RIVER

EXPLORING CANADA'S ARCTIC BY CANOE

The Northwest Territories has never been tamed. Larger than all but a handful of sovereign nations, it's where Canada's most remote rivers weave through an empire of peaks. It's where caribou, mountain sheep, moose and grizzlies travel freely in pristine wilderness. And where people trace timeless paths, following lifeways richer than the modern world can know.

A WILD NORTHERN RIVER

Keele River Wilderness Canoe Expedition

13 days - 12 nights, Novice to Intermediate Paddlers

The Keele River is one of the most remote and beautiful mountain rivers in the Northwest Territories. It's headwaters lie deep inside the Mackenzie Mountains and flow eastward for 300km before emptying out into the Mackenzie River. The Keele River is known for its breath-taking hikes, stunning mountain views and some of the most memorable campsites you'll find anywhere on this planet (wide-open gravel bars sporting dramatic mountain vistas). Bull-Trout and Arctic Grayling can be caught along it's many tributaries. Grizzly bears, Dall sheep, mountain goats and mountain caribou can also be spotted along it's wild shores. While boasting a strong current to whisk paddlers along for its entire length, the Keele River is action-packed, but not intimidating. Novice paddlers can choose smooth water while intermediate paddlers will enjoy options to paddle in larger wave trains. This river offers a thrill to all who paddle it. This expedition includes a final night in the traditional Dene village of Tulita.
